

Jack De Saulles Insolvent When Wife Killed Him

Transfer Tax Appraisal of Estate Shows $62,451 in Liabilities, With Assets That Total Only $29,952

Jack De Saulles, former Yale football star, was heavily in debt and insolvent when he was shot to death by his wife, Mrs. Blanca Errazuriz De Saulles. The tragedy took place on August 3, 1917, at The Box, at Westbury, Long Island. Mrs. De Saulles was acquitted of murder.

The precarious condition of Mr. De Saulles' financial affairs was revealed yesterday by the transfer tax appraisal of his estate filed in the Surrogate's Court. The assets were placed at $29,952, against which amount there were deductions of $62,451, which included $53,881 in debts. Mr. De Saulles died intestate. A search was made for a will, but none was found. The fact that the obligations left by the dead man are much greater than the assets means that there is nothing coming from his estate to his little son, Jack De Saulles, who was the innocent cause of the shooting that ended in De Saulles' death.

Mrs. De Saulles, however, is the daughter of a wealthy mother in Chile and the boy will be well taken care of financially. The largest asset left by Mr. De Saulles was his stocks, which were valued at $17,220. Of these the most valuable were 100 shares of Factory Products Export Company, $10,645, and 45 shares of American Smelting Corporation, $6,575. He had 30,000 shares of the Tamayo Copper Company, which were entered in the appraisal as valueless. The estate of Mr. De Saulles was charged with one-half of the deficit of $19,633 shown in the real estate firm of Hecksher & De Saulles, of which he was a member. He also owed his partner $4,500 on a note. Other debts on notes were Charles A. H. De Saulles, brother, $3,153; Metropolitan Trust Company, $2,000; and Empire Trust Company, $15,000. The notes to the trust companies were secured by collateral. A claim for $8,600 by Edward P. Coyne, who said it was a loan, was not allowed. Some of the assets of the estate were The Box, at Westbury, $2,575; cash, $884; personality, $9,322; books, $1,000; furniture, $2,400; and jewelry, $813.

Lebaudy Widow Seeks Compromise on Estate

Court Asked to Sanction Equal Division of Property With Sister-in-Law

MINEOLA, L. I., Dec. 22.—Mrs. Margaret A. Lebaudy, who shot and killed her husband, Jacques Lebaudy, in self-defense, applied to-day to Surrogate Howell of Nassau County for permission to enter into compromise with the sister of her late husband. Countess Marie Teresa Jeanne Lebaudy de Fels, of Paris, who questioned Mr. Lebaudy's marriage and disputed her claims to her husband's estate. Under the terms of the compromise each claimant would get half of the estate, which has been valued as high as $12,000,000, and as certainly in excess of $5,000,000. Mrs. Lebaudy's share would be divided with her daughter, Jacqueline. Mrs. Lebaudy would acquiesce in the demand of the Countess de Fels that she withdraw as administratrix, and two administrators, one representing each contestant, would be appointed.

A tentative draft of the compromise agreement has been approved by counsel for both sides, according to Mrs. Lebaudy's petition. She says that establishing the fact of her marriage to Lebaudy would necessitate trial of the case in France and England and probably in Belgium, and the transportation of all the witnesses to the seat of each trial.

Judge Isaac R. Oeland, special guardian of Jacqueline Lebaudy, will file on Wednesday a report of all the facts in the case and a copy of the compromise agreement.

More B. R. T. Wreck Awards Special Master Rules Company Can't Protest Damages

The Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company must accept without protest damages awards in connection with the Malbone tunnel disaster as they are made by Philip J. McCook, acting as Special Master. Judge Julius M. Mayer so ruled yesterday in denying a motion to reduce some of the awards and also denying the company the right to file further objections. Claims growing out of the accident amount, it is estimated, to $1,200,000. About $300,000 of this already has been settled. The Special Master has about one hundred cases still on his hands. Seven hundred more await confirmation by the court. Among the awards decided yesterday by Judge Mayer are: Lucy A. Engren, administratrix, $35,000 for husband killed; Charles E. and Helen Harley, $1,000 each for injuries; Ethel C. Holmes, administratrix, $10,000 for husband killed and Ethel K. Pierce, $50,000 for husband killed.

K. of C. Secretary Arrives Here With Unique Gift From Pope

Charles C. Dunn, a Knight of Columbus secretary, arrived yesterday in New York with a white silk skull cap, called a zucchetto, worn by Pope Benedict on state occasions. Edward L. Hearn, commissioner of Knights of Columbus work in France, received the cap as a gift and is sending it to the Rev. Dr. George Daugherty, vice rector of the Catholic University in Washington, D. C., as a Christmas present. Mr. Dunn also brought a scored volume of French history which was found in the ruins of Louvain University. A member of the faculty of Louvain gave him the book and asked him to give it to the Rev. Dr. Patrick J. Healy, director of studies at the Catholic University.
